Big Brindle.

In Nashville, many years ago, resided a gentleman of great hospitality, large fortune, and though uneducated, of hard knot sense. Cal W. had been elected to the Legislature, and had also been judge of the county e. u.t. His elevation had made him somewhat pompous, and foul of using big words. On his farm he had a large ox committed other depredations much to the when I go to the 'cad'my." Colonel's antovance.

One morning after breakfast, in presence of some gentlemen who had stayed with man said to the dictor who was trying to the first men in that and Columbia county, him over night, and who were now on oure him. their way to town, he called his overseer and said to him-

"Mr. Alen, I desire you to impound IS a positive and never-failing Remedy Big Brindle, in order that I may bear no for PILES, whether Internal, Exmore animodversions relative to his eternal depredations."

Atten bowed and walked off, puzzled to C.d. W. left for town, he asked his wife was, &c. &c. what his employer meant by teiling him to the World, that of all medicines ever built before "emperand" the or ?

"Why," said she, "the Colonel mount to te I vos to put him up in a per."
